"Sam" Brengle, an old time well-known graduate of DePauw university, and now connected with the Salvation Army, with the rank of Colonel, is successful and well-known in evangelical work. The Bloomington World says: "The special meetings at the First M. E. Church with Colonel Brengle as the evangelist, will commence tonight and continue through the week. Colonel Brengle comes to Bloomington direct from a series of meetings conducted by him in Kokomo, Marion and Lafayette where he has been having wonderful success. In the meeting at Marion over five hundred were led into the deeper Christian experience through the Colonel's teaching. While at Lafayette the Colonel addressed a convocation of students and had the largest attendance ever recorded at convocation."

MOCK CHAPEL EXERCISES GIVEN BY H. S. STUDENTS

The second of a series of students' chapels by the pupils of the Greencastle high school building this morning at 10:20 o'clock. The members of the sophomore class gave an excellent mock chapel scene in which the faculty of the local high school was represented as it conducted the morning exercises prior to a very important basketball game the local team was to figure in that night.

The members of the sophomore class who took a part in the chapel exercises were attired, so as to represent the principal, athletic director and the teachers of the school. Frank Grismer, as Principal Murray A. Dalman, opened the chapel exercises with a short speech, in which he made two very important announcements, one that the Greencastle high school basketball team would meet the Limesdale high school basket shooters in a game on the Armory floor that night, and the second that the senior class would conduct the chapel exercises in chapel next Wednesday morning. The usual manner in which Principal Dalman makes his announcements was mimicked to perfection.

Athletic Coach J. P. Johnson was then invited to give a short talk on the prospects for winning the hard game with the fast Limesdale team that night. Walter Feld, impersonating Mr. Johnson to a good advantage, responded with a heart to heart talk with the members of the team and the pupils of the high school. The Limesdale team was pictured as one of the fastest teams in the state, having defeated several teams with enviable records, such as, Putnamville. He urged the students of the high school to be present at the game and root hard for Greencastle, who had a bright outlook for a victory. Enthusiasm was at a high pitch and the entire school and faculty sang the high school song. The chapel exercises closed when yell leader Joel Denman led the school in a spirited yell practice and the faculty retired from the room.

The following students who took part in the mock chapel exercises and their impersonations were as follows: Frank Grismer as Principal Dalman, Walter Feld as Coach Johnson, Lulu Lesley as Miss Southard, Dorothy Warner as Miss Allen, Edna Sherley as Miss Trueblood, Helen O'Rear as Miss Freeman, Bonnie Duncan as Miss Doan, Bertha Tucker as Miss Earle.

Among those who went to Indianapolis today to attend the preliminary meetings to the State Democratic convention, were: Howard Harris, William Sutherland, Warren Newgent, H. H. Runyan and Jesse Hamrick.

John Watson, of Cloverdale, was here on business today.

All Quiet at Terre Haute.

Word from Terre Haute is that all is quiet in street railway affairs. The strike is over; mob violence is past history. J. C. Colgan, organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Car Workers, made formal announcement today of the action of union men last night in accepting the order of Governor Ralston that trouble between the traction company and its employees be referred to the Public Service Commission. Street car service was maintained with no indication of trouble. The Public Service Commission will take up the cases of the discharged men Friday. The company announced that men who quit during the demonstration of the mob Saturday night would be reinstated.

TUESDAY CIRCLE DINES THE MEN

THE MEN RESPOND BY WORD AND DEED AND THEREBY RECEIVE AND GIVE PLEASURE.

GREENISH SHADE PREVAILS

The fifteenth annual banquet of the Tuesday Reading Circle was held last evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Tucker. The banquet took the form of a commemoration of St. Patrick's day, the decorations and toasts carrying out the St. Patrick's idea. Seventeen members of the club attended with their husbands.

Ten men responded to toasts, when called upon by Mrs. H. A. Gobin, president of the club, who acted as toastmistress. Prof. Gough gave the first toast of the evening, speaking on "Our Indebtedness to St. Patrick." His response was followed by Dr. Brown, "The Circle Ladies of Heavenly Bodies;" Dr. Town, "The Cost of High Living;" Dr. Blanchard, "The Friends at Home Who Love You and the Friends Abroad Who Miss You;" Prof. Hutchens, "When the Circle is Square;" Prof. Woody, "Mr. Dooley's Philosophy;" Dr. Tucker, "Our Better Halves Diagnosed;" Dr. Gobin, "Our Last Husband—Greetings;" Dr. Sweet, "Response," and Dr. Post, "Post Toasties."

The toasts were filled with wit and stories of Ireland and St. Patrick's Day. Prof. Gough gave several short Irish readings, bringing down the hearty applause of the entire banquet, while Dr. Gobin, in a greeting to Dr. and Mrs. Sweet, who attended their first Tuesday Reading Circle banquet last night, told of some previous entertainments. Dr. Sweet in his response, paid merited tribute to the organization.

The dinner served was largely prepared by members of the club. It consisted of four courses, of fried chicken, potatoes, oysters, rolls, etc., salad, ice cream and cake and coffee. The house was beautifully decorated in green smilax and green carnations, while green candles were placed on every table and green crepe paper was hung over the electric lights, giving a greenish shade to the entire room.

Misses Jesse Gobin, Mary and Josephine Wade, Mary Tucker and Mary Frances Grose assisted in the serving.

THE MEETING ON TUESDAY

"LINES OF TEMPERANCE REFORM" THE SUBJECT OF ADDRESS AT THE W. C. T. U. MEETING BY REV. A. M. HOOTMAN AT HOME OF MRS. SHIELDS.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE

An address by Rev. A. M. Hootman, of "Lines of Temperance Reform," was the special feature at the W. C. T. U. meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Eugenia Shields on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Hootman took as his text, Paul's words: "We wrestle not with flesh and blood, but with principalities and powers, with spiritual wickedness in high places." The question with the reformer is, how and where to begin. First, he must find the leak in the ship of state.

"American annals are filled with expert testimony from every quarter. No continent, no island, people, black white or copper color, has escaped the curse. Dr. Royal J. Dye relates that upon the ship in which he and Mrs. Dye sailed for Africa, as missionaries at Bolinga, 1000 barrels of rum were carried. That year the English government sent to one province in Africa 1,850,000 gallons of liquor. All parts of Africa received in one year from European and American ports, 30,000,000 gallons of liquor. The heathen say that Boston rum and Boston religion came to them on the same ship. Will not Jehovah take vengeance on a people that force the bottle to his neighbor's lips, that steals his manhood, his love, and every sacred spark of his divinity? The leak is in the ship of state. We must fight and we must educate, or short will be our race and our prosperity."

An African prince said: "If we had not advanced as high in civilization as others, neither had we fallen so low until this fatal liquor was forced on by commerce." India reasons this way about accepting christianity. It is from Christian nations that liquor has been brought to debauch our nation and people, who never before were drunkards. In Shanghai, China, the British and American tobacco firm turn out one million cigarettes a day. They deprave and debauch more in a day than our missionaries can correct in a year. To the Philippines we brought liberty, education, civilization, the American public school system and—the American saloon. American soldiers stagger on the streets of Manila and other cities. Are the Christian men and women doing their duty?

Where must our reform begin? At home, in America, at our fire sides, with the young voters, and in the church. God hasten the day when in Indiana and all over America, our mothers and our wives and our daughters shall be permitted to cast a free ballot and place king alcohol in the hospital forever.

Our nation cannot endure if it continues to exchange public morals for public money. This is one of the clauses in the declaration of principles set forth in the great Columbus convention. The morals of our homes, our cities, our streets, our children, our friends and neighbors are infinitely more valuable than any and all the money or other revenue this traffic can yield. The American city is the Gibraltar of the American saloon. One-fourth of all the people in the United States live in saloon territory. One-half of all the saloons in the United States are in fourteen cities. There are more saloons in Chicago than there are south of the Mason's and Dixon's line. Thirty-six of our states have fewer saloons than we have in New York City. We are all aware that the vices of our nation center in our cities. All this has a tendency against purity in municipal affairs. The present method under which the average American city is now struggling for a pure and clean administration cannot wholly be realized or brought about, except through the assistance of the entire state and nation as a free franchise voting unit. The city, ward, township, or county, option has been a failure, or at least only a partial success. National and state-wide prohibition is the only final solution for every city and every state. As the city is subject to the will of the entire state and nation, so the sovereign will of the people of the entire government of the states of this Union should be supreme. In my judgment there is no other way for the cities or states to be permanently delivered from the bondage of corrupt greed into which the liquor traffic has driven them.

A visitor of the afternoon was Mr. Bonsib, connected with the Patriot Phalanx. He has two sons in Columbia University, one of whom won the record as the fastest runner in the United States; he could not have done this had he not been a young man of clean habits. "What we need," said Mr. Bonsib, "is not light, so much as honesty, to walk in the light we have." He enumerated the stages of our lighting facilities, beginning with the tall candle, through the kerosene lamp stage and the gas light, each of which was thought sufficient in its time; he compared with them the stages in temperance reform and sentiment, culminating in our own country in the present movement toward state and national prohibition. You might as well try to talk Christianity without mentioning the Lord Jesus Christ, as to talk temperance without mentioning prohibition," said the speaker. Altogether Mr. Bonsib's informal talk contained much practical information and suggestion and was enlivened throughout with unforced wit.

During the course of the meeting, Mrs. L. A. Beard sang a sacred solo. Several visitors were present. Refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Shields, added to the pleasure of the social hour.

NECK-TIE SALESMAN WAS TRUE GRAFTER.

The fact that a man selling neckties in the city several days ago, and posing as a mute, was a true grafter was disclosed Monday night when a Greencastle resident met the same man in Terre Haute and the salesman failed to show any signs of impediment in speech or defect in hearing, for he was putting up a line of talk that sold his goods in that city.

The "faker" appeared in Greencastle several days ago and made a good haul here. He sold silk knit neckties at 35 cents each. Many local people through sympathy for the man, who posed as a mute and carried out his part to perfection, bought his goods. He was here only one day.

Monday night a Greencastle resident, who had purchased some of his tie here, was in Terre Haute visiting, and met the man in one of the large hotel lobbies of that city. The grafter did not recognize the local man as one of his customers and asked him to look at his line of goods.

When questioned about appearing in Greencastle several days before and posing as a mute, the salesman gave up the prospect of any more sales in that building and left the hotel in a hurry.

Announcement is made that a change of time for the passenger trains on the Monon Railroad will become effective in a few days. The trains both north and south will arrive here earlier.

MARCH THROUGH FIRE

Ceremony of a Sect of Brahmins in Honor of Gods of Fire and Water. A thousand Hindus and a select English officials have recently gathered in the neighborhood of a remarkable religious ceremony, the principal actors being a sect of Brahmins. The festival was called "the march through fire," and it is appropriately named. The proceedings were in honor of Brahma and Vishnu, the gods of water and fire.

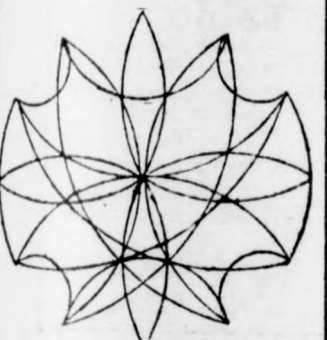

Preparations for the ceremony had been going on for a month. A trench twenty-three feet long and nineteen feet deep was dug, and in it a fire was kindled. At sunrise forty fanatics, who were to demonstrate their ascetic nature, slowly marched around the furnace bearing the curious idols. The Solvistras were clothed in yellow robes, and without hesitation entered the fire trench singing a hymn, the refrain of which was "Govinda! Govinda!"

After walking around this artificial hell three times they emerged apparently none the worse for their experience, and have established an unassailable claim for sanctity among their people.

Indian Burial Methods.

The Indian method of burial was to fasten a corpse upon cross-sticks supported on poles in the ground or in the boughs of the trees. Here the air and the elements silently disposed of the lifeless clay, until in a year or so but little remained to bear evidence of a tomb—perhaps some broken sticks in the top and a few scattered beads or human bones beneath the burial place. I cannot conceive of anything more pitifully gruesome than an Indian burial ground of this type. I have seen them in the fall of the year when the winds were shaking and swaying the platforms and wringing the leafless trees, flaunting the burial rags like signals of distress from the dead, and whistling through and over the whitening bones and neglected remains of those who had many a time withstood the tempest and storm when the breath of life stirred within them.

Long Kid Gloves Ancient.

The wearing of long kid gloves is by no means a modern fashion. As long ago as 1675 they were worn, for there is a description of a pair of white kid wedding gloves twenty-two inches long that were worn drawn in above the elbow, and a famous French authority on historical costumes states that in the time of the empire long gloves were not only fashionable but were ruinously expensive. No woman who made any aspirations to being well dressed could possibly get on with less than a new pair every day.

His Idea of Americans.

Henrik Ibsen was once asked his idea of Americans. "Well," replied Ibsen smiling, "it is my idea that the average American baby, five or six months old, sits in his mother's lap and eyes his own cradle to see if he can't invent a better one, or at least suggest some improvement."

An Astonishing Comparison.

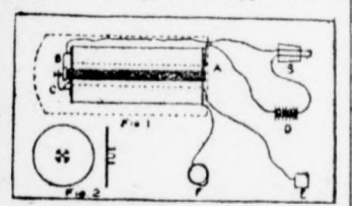

New York city's land values are increasing faster than the total value of the entire output of all the gold and silver mines in the world.

HERE IS A THRILLER

How to Give an Electric Shock While Shaking Hands.

To receive an electric shock while shaking hands is quite a mystery to your friends. This may be accomplished with the aid of a small induction coil that can be constructed at home. The core, A, Fig. 1, is constructed in the usual manner with small soft iron wire to make a bundle about three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter and about two inches long. The coil ends are made from cardboard about one inch in diameter with three-sixteenths-inch hole in the center. When cutting the hole, cut it small pieces that can be bent out, leaving the projections as shown. After wrapping three or four turns of paper around the bundle of wires the cardboard ends are put on with the projections inside, so the coils of wire will hold them in place. About 70 turns of No. 24 double-covered magnet wire is first placed on the core for the primary and then 1,500 turns of No. 32 or 34 double-covered wire is wrapped on top of the primary for the secondary. Sufficient length of wire must be left outside from each end of the vibrator directly opposite the projections. The vibrator, B, Fig. 1, and the support, C, are made from thin spring steel about one-eighth inch wide, bent as shown and securely fastened to the cardboard end of the coil. The armature is made from a soft piece of iron about three-sixteenths-inch thick, which is soldered to the end of the vibrator directly opposite the projections. A small screw is fitted in the end of the support, C, for adjustment, which should be tipped with platinum placed where the screw will touch the vibrator, B.

One of the primary wires is connected to a flash lamp battery, D. The other primary wire is connected to a switch, S, which in turn is connected to the other terminal of the battery. The switch, S, may be made from a three-eighths-inch cork with the wires put through about three sixteenths-inch apart and allow them to project about one-half inch. The plate E is cut about one-half inch square from a piece of copper and is fastened to the heel of one shoe and connected with a wire from the secondary coil, which must be concealed inside of the trouser leg. The other secondary wire is connected through the coat sleeve to a finger ring, F. The vibrator screw must be properly adjusted. When the vibrator is not working the armature should be about one-sixteenth inch from the core and directly opposite.

The coil when complete, says Popular Mechanics, will be about 2 1/4 inches long and one inch in diameter. The coil can be placed in an old box that has been used for talcum powder or shaving stick. The space around the coil in the box can be filled with paper, to keep it tight.

The coil and battery are carried in the pockets and the cork button put in the outside coat pocket, where it can be pressed without attracting attention.

Marriage in Southern Nigeria.

Among all tribes in Southern Nigeria polygamy is the rule, the reason given by the natives being that it is impossible for one woman to do all the work of the house, look after the children, prepare and cook the food, fetch the daily supply of water (often an arduous job), cultivate the plantation and go to market. And the reason is that the African is an exceedingly hungry person. It is their custom to eat several times a day when at home, and the men spend most of their day sitting in the palaver house, or market place, while the women bring the food all day long. One wife could not possibly do this. Besides, the African lady encourages it, for she says: "The more wives the less work." Among the Abaras, Onichas, Obayus and the lower class of pagan tribes in the interior there is very little form of marriage. As soon as a man has the means he pays the parents what they want in the shape of goats, cows, beads, money, and takes the girl. There is no ceremony at all. The more wives he has indicates a richer man and that he will be better looked after. If of course they can manage to seize a woman from the neighboring tribe while she is fetching water or working on her farm so much the cheaper. With this method in vogue for centuries no wonder that it is as much as a native's life is worth to go out of his own village and that the country is so backward.

A Real Snake Story.

An old hen with a large family of small chickens was recently given an empty barrel turned down on its side for a coop on the writer's premises. One day recently the hen gave the signal of distress used by all good farmers, and the barrel was quickly surrounded by the fighting members of the household.

A large snake was found in the barrel and quickly lynched. Several bunches were noticed on the reptile's body, and he was ripped up the back with a pair of shears, and seven chickens were found gasping for breath. They lived.

PLAN IRRIGATION BY WELLS

Arizona Farmers Adopt Underground Water Supply Which is Now An Assured Success.

TUCSON, ARIZ.—Exploration of the underground waters of the Santa Cruz and Rillito rivers during the past year has increased confidence in their sufficiency to irrigate the farm lands of their valleys. During the summer wells were driven to the second strata. The water rose vigorously to the level of the first stratum, from which the lift to the surface is short. This shows that the more accessible waters may be considerably augmented, with only the additional first cost of driving a deeper well, says the Citizen.

It is not yet known just how many acres the underground water can be depended upon to irrigate in the average season, but it is known that they will go a long way.

The first elaborate development—that by the Tucson Farms Company—was a development of the first water bearing stratum. This lies at a depth of from 20 to 30 feet from the surface, depending upon the proximity to the channel of the river. It consists of a coarse gravel. The development consisted principally of a crosscut a mile in length at the second stratum and is narrow compared with that of the first one. The farms company's wells will help to define it.

Los Angeles men who acquired land below the junction of the rivers developed a similar well at Weaver pit. The pit was dug many years ago. It had filled up with silt. A strong flow of water was encountered here and will be used ultimately in irrigating a tract of 7,000 acres held by them.

"309" PERPETUAL TO MAILS.

Alien Takes Old House Number Along to Each New Home.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Although he has changed his residence five times within the last two years, Ivan Winoski, a Pole, unruffled by postoffice regulations and the storming of mail carriers, triumphantly has the same old number plate, 309, fastened above the door of his latest residence.

Two years ago Winoski lived in South Thirteenth street. The house had no number plate, and Winoski was directed to provide one in conformity with the postal regulations. He did so.

A month later he moved to another unnumbered house in another street. That didn't bother him; he took the 309 along. This caused carriers trouble, but Winoski remained serene.

Four times since then Winoski has changed his place of residence, and each time he has taken along the 309 sign and tacked it above his door. The South Side mail carriers have become used to Winoski's number and have ceased to report him. They refer to him as "No. 309."

50-CENT TIP CAUSES $300 LOSS.

Plausible Stranger Induces Tailor's Employee to Leave Parcels and Go on Errand.

New York—Simon Nipkin, errand boy for Frederick Plasi, ladies' tailor, No. 27 West Thirtieth street, is seeking a well-dressed man, who, by giving him 50 cents, gained three gowns valued at $100 each. Young Nipkin had the gowns in his possession when the man approached him at Fifth avenue and Thirtieth street.

"Do you want to make a half dollar?" asked the stranger. "Sure," said the boy; whereupon the man gave Simon a half dollar and asked him to go to a number on Twenty-ninth street and deliver a note to a woman there. He suggested that Simon leave the parcels in a store till he came back. Together they went to a tailor shop on Madison avenue and Simon left the packages.

When the boy returned fifteen minutes later to report he could find no such woman at the address given; the well-dressed man was gone; so were the three packages.

Find American Martyrs' Graves.

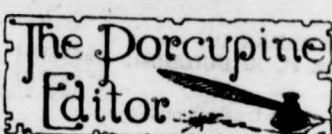

Havana—Discovered by workmen who are making an excavation, the remains of fifteen of Colonel William Crittenden's Kentuckians, whom the Spaniards shot in 1851, were found near the ancient Atares Fort. Colonel Crittenden and his men went to Cuba on a filibustering expedition, expecting to be joined by the Cubans; the commander and fifty of his men were captured, court-martialed and sentenced to death.

Colonel Crittenden was told to kneel before the firing squad in Atares fort; his proud answer was: "An American kneels only to his God."

The bodies were buried secretly, and, although Americans and Cubans have desired to honor their memory, the place of burial has remained unknown.

Fireman Leaves $6,000 to Charity.

Houston, Tex.—A fireman, thought to have been penniless, left $6,000 to charity. He was Patrick Haley. He was killed recently when the ladder truck he was riding to a fire threw him to the pavement. He was not married and had no relatives. His estate he divided between the Church of Annunciation, St. Joseph's Infirmary and St. Anthony's Home of Aged.

THE VACILLATION OF MRS. LITTLEFIELD

By Irene E. Ackerman.

Dutiful daughters sometimes grow up so quietly in perfect harmony with "mother's wishes" that it seems impossible for them ever to have a wish of their own that mother has not sanctioned. When they do develop tendencies entirely their own the griefed surprise of the family is incredible. Just such excitement did Edna originate in the Littlefield family when she, the only and cherished daughter of a loving and devoted, if somewhat didactic, father and mother, arrived at a point of controversy.

It came upon Mrs. Littlefield first and at a weak time—perhaps Edna chose it purposely—when she had just given her daughter a word of warm praise for some dutiful action with a due regard to her own fitness as judge of what was good and commendable in her daughter.

Edna felt it was right that she had earned that praise and she had not expected to be told that she had not. She had been trying to tell her mother she had been finding nothing objectionable in her becoming engaged now she was fully 18.

She had spoken very last, but her voice trailed away at disapproval, mother's bristling air and "We don't even know him!" was Mrs. Littlefield's last exciting sentence of a long and strong list of reasons why Edna should consider herself under no engagement whatsoever.

"And we don't even know him!" she repeated at the end of a long account of the matter to Edna's father. He, poor man, was drawn two ways at once by his daughter and his wife.

"Is he the right one, Edna?" he asked, drawing his daughter to him. "Do you love him better than you could ever love anyone else?"

TAKE YOUR SHOPPING SERIOUSLY

It takes judgment to make family purse do its full measure of service in these days of high prices.

The wise woman takes her shopping seriously and spends her money carefully.

She seeks the best advice she can get, and nine times out of ten she finds it in the advertising columns of live newspapers like The Herald.

She reads the advertising daily and keeps posted on what the stores are showing. If some fortunate turn in the market presents an unusual opportunity she is ready to take advantage of it.

She markets as carefully and with as much knowledge of the situation as her husband would show if he were buying a piece of real estate.

Advertising is a business education to the modern woman. It is her ready reference book. She verifies the statements made in print from time to time and she soon becomes an expert on What's What and Who's Who.

"res, I love him," she whispered, then throwing her arms around his beck, "and he's the best young man next to you I ever knew!"

"There, there," he said, mightily pleased. "Cheer up! It'll be all right; it'll be all right."

All the next day Mrs. Littlefield set her daughter an example of cheerfulness that Edna was far from following with her far-away look and listless, forlorn manner.

"She'll get over it in a little while," thought Mrs. Littlefield; "she only needs something to take up her attention."

This unspoken wish of the mother's found speedy materialization when, shortly before the evening meal, a telephone message came saying Mr. Littlefield would be a little late to tea and would bring a friend with him.

"Probably the elder Mr. Sloan," said Mrs. Littlefield, at once hurrying about.

When, with noise and bustle of arrival, the man of the house ushered in his guest, and Mrs. Littlefield came forward in a puzzled way as Mr. Littlefield introduced a young stranger.

"The younger Mr. Sloan, my dear," explained Mr. Littlefield, "who is coming into the firm. We shall soon be 'Sloan, Littlefield and Sloan.'" There was a sly twinkle in his eye that remained all through the pleasant meal.

To see how Mr. Sloan paid deference to the elder woman, engaging her with his frank, charming boyishness and causing her to bridle proudly at the admiringly courteous looks he turned toward her demure daughter.

"A very agreeable young man," she whispered in an aside to Edna as they passed into the drawing room after the meal.

"What do you think of the future addition to the firm?" jovially asked Mr. Littlefield that night when the guest had departed.

"A very proper young man," was Mrs. Littlefield's complacent answer, "one that any mother might be glad to introduce amongst her daughters. It's just as I would have it," she added enigmatically, "and if I do say it, Edna's as taking a young girl as any."

As Edna kissed her father good night he looked into the bright eyes. "Are you happy again, little daughter?" he asked.

"Very happy," came the reply. "But must I tell mother that was Ralph?"

A wholesome play proving that even in the shadow of Nero's throne, love was mightier than savagery.

$10,000 IMPROVEMENT ON FILMORE H. S. BUILDING

At a meeting of the trustees of Marion township Tuesday afternoon it was decided that a $1000 addition would be made to the Filmore high school building. With this improvement it will be one of the most adequate high school buildings in the state.

The high school building now in use is a good one but is not large enough to accommodate the many pupils of Marion township. With the new addition many studies may be added to the curriculum. Only a three-year course is available for the high school students at Filmore at the present time, but after the improvements on the building are made a four-year course will be substituted. The school is now non-commissioned and it is not known whether the school will be changed to a commissioned institution or not.

Postage on Books Reduced.

Beginning March 16, the rates of postage on books will be one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof up to eight ounces. Over eight ounces the regular parcel post rates will apply. This is a material reduction in the cost of sending books by mail and will no doubt result in a marked increase in this class of mail.

Another change in the rates on printed matter is that on quantities of miscellaneous printed matter weighing over four pounds, the regular parcel post rate will apply, while on four pounds or under the rate of one cent for each two ounces will still hold good.

The art exhibit, now on at Indianapolis, is well attended and considerable interest is manifested. The Indianapolis News, in reviewing the exhibit, says: "Mrs. Louise Zaring, of Greencastle, who has recently come to this city for study, was a pupil of Charles Hawthorne. Her portrait, 'Freida,' is interesting. The title, 'Lazy Boats,' is puzzling until we see a number of launches beached, and covered with tarpaulins."

PUPILS SURPRISE THEIR TEACHER

MEMBERS OF SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADES OF SECOND WARD GIVE PLEASANT PARTY FOR MISS DELL MILLER AT HER HOME—BIRTHDAY OF TEACHER CAUSE FOR SURPRISE.

THEY BRING REFRESHMENTS

A pleasant surprise was given Miss Dell Miller, principle of the second ward school, at her home Tuesday night, by the pupils of her seventh and eighth grades. The pupils assembled at the home of Rev. Beck and appeared at Miss Miller's home with well filled baskets of refreshments at about eight o'clock.

Yesterday was Miss Miller's birthday and some time ago the pupils got word of the fact and planned the surprise. A committee of the young seventh and eighth grade pupils was appointed to arrange for the entertainment and refreshments, and according to those present they performed their duty very well. Miss Miller had no intimation of the proposed party until the pupils appeared at her home at the appointed time.

After the congratulations had been received by their teacher, the pupils prepared to play games and enjoy the occasion in the best possible manner. For over an hour the pleasure continued, and then the children dragged the baskets of refreshments out from their hiding place in the corner and served out a hearty luncheon. After the refreshments the young students bade their teacher farewell and the party broke up.

About thirty pupils were present at the surprise, every student in the in the two classes of the second ward being present. Miss Miller has been a teacher in Greencastle for many years, having served as principal of both the second and third wards. For the last six years she has been principal of the second ward and has taught the seventh and eighth grades, and has won the friendship of every pupil she has had under her care. The surprise last night was indicative of the esteem with which the pupils regard their teacher.

SENIORS TO GIVE PLAY AT COMMENCEMENT.

"Trelawney of the Wells," a four-act comedietta, has been chosen by the seniors of DePauw as the class play to be given during commencement week. The play was chosen by a committee appointed some time ago and its report was adopted by the class in a meeting in Meharry Hall this afternoon.

The play was written by Arthur W. Pinero and is published by the Dramatic Publishing Co., of Chicago. The action of the play centers around the Wells Theatrical Co., of England. It is a royalty production. The local cast will be announced within the next few days.

Besides the report of the play committee, the class considered the selection of commencement announcements, and discussed plans for class week exercises. A committee was named to decide upon the time for the annual "coming out" day.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Last Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock service, the congregation and pastor decided to begin a series of revival services, on Sunday evening, March 22nd, to be carried on by the home forces, the pastor to do the preaching.

This move has been in contemplation for some months. The calling and welcoming committees—among the men and women of the church will be enlarged and placed in active Christian service. After-noon prayer services will be held in different parts of the city—to which every one will be kindly invited.

The condition of Mrs. Oscar Webster, who has been seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fenton Lawler, in Noblesville, was reported much better today. Mrs. Webster was taken sick while visiting at Noblesville.
